Cold Enough
Yeah...
You already gone
I just didn’t wanna see it

You stopped calling after midnight
Stopped looking at me the same way
We sleep close but miles apart now
Too much silence in what we don’t say

I keep driving through the city lights
Trying to outrun what we became
Every song still sounds like your voice
Every memory hits my brain

If you got one foot out the door
Why you still touching me slow?
I can survive the truth
Just don’t leave me in the unknown

If you don’t love me — say it cold enough
If you wanna leave me — break me hard enough
Don’t keep my heart alive
Just to watch it give up

If you already moved on
Then don’t call this love
Cause half of your heart
Will never be enough

Your perfume faded from my hoodie
But somehow it still fills the room
Funny how a broken feeling
Can follow everywhere you move

You keep saying “it’s complicated”
Like that changes what I know
Truth is written in your distance

Even when you hold me close

No more late-night resurrection
No more temporary affection
If we’re dying, let it happen
I’m exhausted from pretending

If you don’t love me — say it straight tonight
I’d rather crash than slowly lose my mind
Don’t leave me hanging on
To something already gone

If you’re really done with us
Then leave no doubt behind
Cause lonely hurts less
Than fake love over time